THIRTIETH REPORT

OF THE

INSPECTOR

OF

REFORMATORY AND INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS

IN IRELAND.

TO THE

RIGHT HON. WILLIAM LAWIES JACKSON, P.C., M.P., &c., &c.,

CHIEF SECRETARY TO THE LORD LIEUTENANT OF IRELAND.

OFFICE OF INSPECTOR OF REFORMATORY AND INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS IN IRELAND,
DUBLIN CASTLE,

June 9th, 1892.

Sir,

I have the honour to submit to you the 30th Annual Report on the Reformatory and Industrial Schools in Ireland, showing their working and management during the year ending 31st December, 1891.

NUMBER OF SCHOOLS.

At the close of 1891 there were 7 Reformatory and 70 Industrial Schools in active operation in Ireland distributed as follows:—

	REFORMATORIES		INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS
	Roman Catholics.	Pro- testants.	Roman Catholics.	Pro- testants.
Number of Schools for Boys, . . .	2	1	16	5
Do. Girls, . . .	3	1	42	6
Do. Young Boys and Girls, . . .	-	-	1	-
Total, . . .	5	2	59	11

The number of children under detention in Reformatory Schools at the close of the year 1891 was 786 as against 816 at the close of 1890. Of the 786 under detention, 716 were in the schools, 53 were on license, 4 were in prison, and 13 had absconded, their sentence being unexpired.

As regards Industrial Schools there were 8,547 children under detention at the close of 1891, as against 8,609 at the close of 1890. Of the 8,547 under detention on 31st of December, 1891, 7,446 were in school paid for under Rules by Treasury.

319 do. in excess of number paid for.

697 were out on license.

6 absconded, sentence unexpired.

79 remained in school as voluntary inmates, sentence expired.

REFORMATORY SCHOOLS.

In my report for last year I took occasion to dwell at some length on the history of the Industrial Schools system, and did not think it out of place to call attention to the gradual change which had come over the mind of Europe as regards education generally, and the duties of the State in respect to it.

Punishment and Reformation.

The revolution which has taken place in the method of dealing with crime has not been less remarkable. The view that punishment should not, at least in the case of minor crimes, be unaccompanied by an attempt at reformation, was first formulated in the year 1702, by Mabillon, the famous Benedictine of La Congrégation de St. Maur. Since then it has been developed by various eminent writers in France, Germany, and Italy, and practically applied by enlightened Administrators in various countries. To trace out, however, the growth of this idea in detail is a work rather for persons responsible for the administration of Prisons than for a department which has to deal with Reformatory Schools.

Early Reformatory
Schools.

The first Reformatory School was founded in Switzerland by Pestalozzi in 1775. In 1820 a school for young criminals was established at Veenhuizen in Holland, and subsequently another at Arnheim. This latter deservedly enjoys the reputation of being one of the best managed Institutions in Europe. Since then Reformatory Schools have been founded in almost every civilised country.

Massachusetts System.

In America, when a State officer finds a child begging, wandering, or frequenting the company of thieves or other bad characters, he may go in the first instance and warn the parent that if the child is not looked after it will be taken into custody; should no good result follow this warning, the child is brought before a magistrate and committed to a Reformatory or Industrial School. This is known as the Massachusetts system. As regards the United Kingdom, one of the most remarkable characteristics of our Reformatory system is that the schools are under voluntary management, and although there are obvious inconveniences to this method, many persons look upon it as the secret of their success. I do not myself entirely share this opinion; but still it is right to mention that Institutions for the reform of young offenders, when exclusively under State control, have not been successful in these Islands.

Voluntary Management of Reformatories in the United Kingdom.

The Act which established Reformatory Schools in Ireland was passed 2nd August, 1858, and was amended in 1868 by Act 31 and 32 Vic., cap. 59. These statutes have to be read together and are still in force. The first Reformatory School in Ireland was certified in 1858. Eight others were certified between that and 1861, and the last was certified in 1870. The largest number of Reformatory Schools at any time was ten. The following return gives the number of young offenders in Irish Reformatory Schools on 31st December in each year since 1858.

1875, . . .	935	225	1,109

This Table shows a progression of the numbers in custody on 31st of December in each year up to 1880. Since then there has been a steady decrease, which seems likely to continue.

The seven Reformatories at present working in Ireland are satisfactorily managed, and have produced some remarkable results. The success of Reformatory as well as Industrial Schools turns mainly on the question of disposal, and of late years especially this matter has been carefully attended to.

General return of Reformatory
Schools.

Some persons have, from time to time, questioned the value to the country of Reformatory Schools, and insisted that many of those trained in them ultimately sink into the criminal classes. As a matter of fact, however, the great majority of those detained in these Institutions have succeeded remarkably well in life. The few who have relapsed into crime were almost invariably persons on whom short sentences had been passed.

Evil effects of short sentences.

It would be well if Magistrates and Judges would bear this in mind. All authorities on the Reformatory system, without exception, agree that sentences to a Reformatory should be for a maximum period of five years. This gives the Manager fair play as regards the subsequent disposal of the young offender. It should be remembered that a five years sentence does not of necessity mean five years detention in a Reformatory. Managers have power to licence after half the sentence has expired, and may obtain a discharge at any time if they can show that it is for the advantage of the young offender. The history of Glencree, as I pointed out last year, furnishes an illustration of the evil effects of short sentences. Since the foundation of that establishment in 1870 till the end of 1890, 12 per cent. of the boys sentenced for 5 years were reconvicted, a larger percentage of those sentenced to 4, and a still larger of those sentenced to 3 years were reconvicted; whereas 28 per cent. of those sentenced to 2 years, and over 40 per cent. of those who were discharged within a few months after admission, found their way back into gaol.

If the services of Reformatories were considered more in detail they would be better appreciated. A striking illustration of the evil effects produced by ignoring these services was furnished by Alderman Dundon of the Limerick Corporation, in a very able speech reported in the Limerick Leader of 8th April, 1892.

In the year 1884 a resolution was passed by the Corporation of Limerick not to contribute to the support of children committed to Reformatories. The result was, that Managers of Reformatory Schools refused to take children coming from the city of Limerick; and as far as that city was concerned, the Reformatory Act became practically a dead letter. In the speech already referred to, Alderman Dundon showed that the consequence of this state of things was the formation of bands of young children who received direction in crime from old and habitual offenders. Thus the action of the Corporation revived in Limerick the societies of little pickpockets, and organized gangs of young criminals such as in former days infested all our cities and towns, but were broken up by the working of the Reformatory Acts.

During the past year 190 children were discharged from the seven Reformatories, 162 being boys, and 28 girls. There were two deaths, one in Philipstown and the other in High Park, Drumcondra.

The following Table shows how the discharged children were disposed of:—

Two children were transferred during the year from one Reformatory to another.

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS.

Since the first Industrial School in Ireland was certified in May, 1869, up to the 31st of December last, 20,509 children—9,566 being boys and 10,943 being girls—have been trained in them, and the vast majority of these children are now doing well. This has been specially the case as regards those who have been brought up at Artane, the Meath School for Protestant boys at Blackrock, the Good Shepherd, Sundays Well, Cork, the Industrial School managed by the Sisters of Mercy, Dundalk, the one managed by the Sisters of Charity at Merriem, and at the various Industrial Schools in Belfast.

ARTANE.

The greatest and most remarkable Industrial School in Europe is the one managed by the Christian Brothers at Artane. The only Industrial School in the world which can be compared to it is the New York Catholic Protectory. The latter school is divided into three departments, one for male children, another for female, and a third for junior boys. About 3,500 children receive instruction annually in it. Artane is exclusively for boys, its sphere of action is less wide, and its resources much more limited than the American Institution. In my last report, however, I entered so fully into its history that I do not propose to deal with it at any very great length on the present occasion.

Necessity of arrangements for the observation of new committees.

During the course of the year several alterations and improvements have been made in the buildings. The most important has been the erection of a new infirmary. This building is situated at some little distance from the school, and when complete a portion of it may be used for the purposes of observation of newly admitted children. At the Convent of the Good Shepherd in Cork, and at Parsonstown, in the King's County, newly committed children are detained for some three weeks in a special building where they are well cared for and looked after before being allowed to join the others. The result has been extremely satisfactory, and these Institutions, especially the Cork School, have been singularly free from contagious or infectious diseases.

In a large school like Artane it is a matter of prime importance that a similar method should be adopted.

During last year the average number of boys resident in the school was 802. These received in the workshops instruction in carpentering, engine-fitting, harness-making, painting, tailoring, baking, &c. The following Table shows the number of boys receiving instructions in various trades:—

Bakery,	14	Tailors,	76
Carpentering,	14	Plasterers,	2
Farm Co.,	14	Weavers,	12
Cabinet Makers,	16	Hair Dressers,	4
Painters,	8	Gardeners,	9

Engine Fitters and Wire Workers,	22	Butchers,	2
Blacksmiths,	10	Special Training for Domestic Service,	13
Tinsmiths and Plumbers,	16
Shoemakers,	48

The next table shows the number of children at the close of the year in the various standards in the school-rooms; the more advanced classes learn geometry, algebra, and shorthand.

Fifth do.	175	175	175	175	175	175
Total.	800	800	748	417	607	800

The result of the last examination held by the Science and Art Department was very satisfactory. The whole school was reported good, and many of the boys obtained special distinction.

The cost of maintaining a boy at this School is £18 19s. 1d. per annum, which is made up in the following way:—

Clothing.	£2,610	3	4

OTHER ROMAN CATHOLIC INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS.

Besides Artane, there are fifteen other schools for Roman Catholic boys, of these nine are for senior boys, and six for junior boys. Of the former, the school at Letterfrack, managed by the Christian Brothers, deserves mention. As regards the six Institutions for junior boys, the school at Killarney is exceptionally good; but of these schools I must give special praise to the management of Passage West. I attribute the marked success of this Institution mainly to the circumstance that the Nuns are able to give such close personal attention to these unfortunate children for whom the bond of kindred has been broken. The dietary is excellent; and the boys, when they leave this Institution, are, both physically and morally, exceptionally able to profit by any instruction they may receive elsewhere.

PROTESTANT INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS.

Meath School Blackrock.

There are eleven Protestant Industrial Schools; of these five are for boys, and six for girls. The schools for boys are on the whole well managed particularly the Meath Industrial School at Blackrock, in which Dr. Samuel Gordon takes such special interest, and contrives to devote to its management a large portion of his valuable time. I mentioned in my last report that it would be most desirable to bring about an amalgamation between the two male Protestant schools in Cork. I am glad to say that this is now on the point of being carried out; and I now look forward to a time when the Protestants of Cork will have a really efficient Industrial School for boys.

Amalgamation of Cork
Schools

Cork Female Schools.

I am sorry to have to remark that in many respects the two Protestant female schools in Cork are not altogether what they ought to be, and I trust that the Protestant community of that city will come to the aid of the Manager, Miss Woodroffe, and help her to carry out some necessary reforms.

Schools in Belfast.

The two Female Protestant Schools, Hampton House and Shamrock Lodge in Belfast, are excellent Institutions. The latter is under the management of Mrs. Margaret Byers, a lady who is specially competent for such work. Hampton House is certified for 120, and is in many respects a model institution. Connected with this establishment are two cottage homes. In each of these there are ten children under the care of a lady superintendent. The idea is to keep up, as much as possible, a family life, and I should be astonished if, as time goes on, this system does not turn out a marked success.

Cottage Homes.

BALTIMORE.

Some Industrial Schools have been established for a special purpose, and of these the most remarkable and best known is Baltimore. In my last Annual Report I entered into the history of this Institution at such length that it is not necessary for me to touch upon the subject again. As regards the School generally, I have no reason to alter or modify the opinion I then gave expression to. During 1891 geometry has been taught in the sixth class; and in the Examination on Navigation, under the Science and Art Department, 24 boys were examined in the elementary stage; out of that number 23 obtained 1st, and the remaining two 2nd class certificates. I trust that in the future I may have to report that a still larger number of boys have passed successful examinations in this important subject.

Since the opening of the School up to 31st December, 1891, 196 boys have been admitted into it. Last year 23 were discharged. During its previous existence since 1887, the total number of discharges has been 42, so that it will be perceived the year 1891 may be looked upon as the first year that discharges have taken place on a considerable scale.

Of the three and twenty boys who were discharged last year 11 are engaged in occupations connected with seafaring life. They are doing well, some of them remarkably so. But the Manager will now commence to feel the real difficulty in connection with this School, namely, the disposal of boys on the termination of their period of detention. This difficulty is increased by the variety of the districts from which the boys come, and I should very much like to see some arrangement carried out under which their connection with the School might be maintained for some time after discharge. The immediate wants of the Institution are a curing-house on the most approved plan, a covered or inside playroom, which might be used in inclement weather, and a building set apart for patients suffering from contagious diseases. This building need not be large, and should be at some distance from the School. I also trust that before long arrangements will be made to teach boat-building, carpentering, and cooperage. The circumstance that the School has been incorporated under the Educational Endowments (Ireland) Act (43 and 49 Vic., c. 78), places it in an exceptional position amongst Industrial Schools, and under this Act its accounts are audited by an official of the Local Government Board.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT—REFORMATORY SCHOOLS.

Comparing the amount received in 1891 with that in 1890 it will be seen by the following Table that the total sum received last year was less than that received in the previous year by £285 19s. 2½d.

The average cost during the past year, which is arrived at by taking the individual cost in each school, was £21 15s. 1d. In the year before it was £22 19s. 3d.

The reason why the cost per head last year was somewhat less than in 1890, arose from the fact that the Rehoboth School, in which the cost per head was as high as £31 8s., ceased to exist in August, 1890.

The following return shows the cost per head per annum in each Reformatory School during the past two years:—

The Government Grant for children in Reformatory Schools is at the rate of six shillings per head per week, which comes to £15 12s. for the year, the balance which is never more than £5 or £6 is met chiefly by Counties and Corporations contributing for the support of the children.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT—INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS.

Following the practice hitherto adopted in previous reports, I publish the following Table, giving the sources of revenue during the past two years.

Net Increase £554 19s. 1½d.

I also have made out the cost of expenditure for the Industrial Schools of Ireland, which is herewith given. It amounted to £160,317 12s. 10d., while for 1890, their maintenance cost £158,274 1s. 1d., there was therefore an increase of £2,043 11s. 9d., last year over that of the previous year.

EXPENDITURE—1891.

The cost for each child's support averaged £17 17s. 3d. last year, which is very nearly what it was in 1890, the average cost was then £17 13s. As the Government Grant is £13 per annum for each child—there is but a small sum remaining to be met. With some exceptions the Grand Jury of each county and corporation contribute a capitation rate for the children in these schools. Considering the excellent work done by these Institutions they are certainly deserving of local aid, and I venture to express the opinion that every county and corporation, without exception, should help to maintain the children coming from their own localities who are under detention in Industrial Schools.

PARENTAL MONEY.

The following Table shows that last year there was £997 0s. 7d. collected for Parental Money, as against £928 16s. 4d. in 1890, thus showing an increase of £68 4s. 3d.

While on this subject I cannot help thinking that the Managers might do more to help this Office with information which would enable it to demand payment from parents who can afford to contribute to the maintenance of their children.

EDUCATION.

As regards education, I am quite satisfied that the Industrial Schools will compare favourably with other Primary Schools in Ireland. Many of them are inspected by officials of the National Board, who are able to make a comparison between the children in these establishments and those attending the National Schools. As a rule, they find the children of Industrial Schools superior to the others. This is, no doubt, largely due to the circumstance that the Industrial School children must attend regularly; but I am able to testify that education imparted in Industrial Schools not examined by National Board Inspectors is quite as good, and sometimes better, than those connected with National Schools.

Agriculture. I had occasion to mention last year that I found an almost total absence of instruction in Agriculture; this is the more to be deplored, as farming must remain for a long time to come the chief occupation of the people. I confidently hope that at least in some Schools a vigorous effort will shortly be made to teach with method and thoroughness some industries having a direct bearing on agricultural pursuits. I am glad to notice that in the Meath School at Blackrock, efforts are being made to bring boys up as practical gardeners. It is earnestly to be desired that other schools will follow this example. Proficiency in any branch of practical gardening is certain to secure for its possessor lucrative employment and an independent existence.

Gardening.

In some of the Convent schools in Connaught and Munster, instruction is being given in dairy industry by girls who have been trained in the Cork Dairy School. The result is that a better system of dairying is rapidly spreading in those Provinces. This is the more important, seeing that the Irish dairy farmer could easily hold his ground against all comers if he would only produce such a quality of butter as he might do if he were seriously to set about it. It is essential, however, he should learn winter dairying. One of the reasons why the butter produce of several foreign countries reach such a high average value, is that they send butter to market all through the year. Irish butter, on the other hand, is usually made in summer, and generally sold when prices are lowest. It only finds its way to market in very small quantities at the season when prices are high.

Dairy Industry.

The weaving industry established last year at St. Coleman's, Queenstown, is being carried on, and Miss Woodroffe still continues her efforts to re-establish the business of silk weaving, which was introduced into this country by the French Protestants who came to Ireland after the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes.

Weaving.

I wish these efforts the greatest possible success. The pupils are sure to acquire mechanical knowledge and skill. Whether other profitable results will follow is a matter which the future will decide.

The praiseworthy efforts made by the Manager at Newtown-forbes to establish a poultry farm on a large scale have not been relaxed. A very large outlay has been expended on the erection of poultry houses and yards, on the most modern and improved methods. At the present moment, the Manager has sixteen varieties of the best breeds of fowl. The children are taught the proper way of rearing poultry. If this industry spreads it will do much to promote the comfort of our agricultural population, for it is certain if the small farmers in Ireland knew how to make the most of their poultry they would soon experience a marked change for the better in their financial position.

Poultry Farming, Newtown-forbes.

I am happy to be able to say that in the few schools which I alluded to in my last report as more or less unsatisfactory, reforms suggested by me have been carried out, and there has been a marked improvement during the last year.

Improvement in backward Schools.

BUILDINGS.

The school buildings are now, generally speaking, in a satisfactory condition. I have been informed that at the passing of the Act, owing to various circumstances not necessary to enter into, buildings were certified which would not now be considered fit for industrial schools. My predecessors had, from time to time, to find considerable fault with the accommodation afforded in them; but these old buildings are rapidly being replaced by edifices specially constructed for industrial school work, and in a very short time they will be completely things of the past. The new school buildings at the Meath School in Bray, at Shamrock Lodge, Belfast, and at Lurgan, in the County of Armagh, are instances in point.

HEALTH.

The health of the children has been most satisfactory. In Reformatory Schools there have been no deaths from contagious or infectious disease, or any serious epidemic in any of them.

In Industrial Schools there were 89 deaths during the past year out of about 10,000 children under detention; of these 80, 17 were out on licence, and 72 actually in the schools. Of these latter 36 died from lung disease, and, although this has been a singularly bad winter, the death rate from this malady was 3·6 per 1,000 as against 4·1 the year before.

There have been only 5 deaths from contagious or infectious disease and the small number of such cases shows conclusively the care which the managers take as regards admission and isolation.

In some of the Schools the health of the children during last year has been extraordinarily good. This was especially the case at the Convent School at Dundalk. I have been informed by the Medical Officer, who regularly visits this establishment, that he had no occasion to prescribe for a single case of illness among the children during the whole of 1891. Several other institutions, such as Oughterard, Clonakilty, and the Good Shepherd in Cork, show records almost as remarkable.

OPHTHALMIA.

I am sorry to be obliged to say that ophthalmia prevailed largely in a few Industrial Schools. My predecessors have so continually called the attention of Managers to the necessity of taking precautions against this grave and insidious disease, that it ought to be unnecessary for me to do more than refer to what they have said. Nevertheless what has come under my notice during the past year calls for some special remarks.

Managers should distinctly understand that ophthalmia, if neglected is often the commencement of mischief which leads to the total destruction of the eye for practical purposes. All forms of this disease are dangerous, and both acute and chronic granular ophthalmia contagious in the highest degree. They should, therefore, when they observe a child suffering from any form of eye disease isolate it at once and call in medical aid, for it is only a skilled physician who can distinguish the contagious from the non-contagious form. Infection occurs mainly through transference from the secretion of the eye from the affected persons by means of handkerchiefs, towels, and the like. It is of the utmost importance therefore that each child should possess a separate towel, and that proper supervision should be exercised to ensure that children should only use their own towels.

As regards treatment, I must protest against the empiric methods sometimes used to cure this disease. Managers incur a grave responsibility who allow children to be treated for it by any person other than a skilled physician.

CONCLUSION.

In concluding this Report, I have to express my acknowledgment of the assistance received from the Managers, and my appreciation of the alacrity which they have shown in carrying out suggestions which it has been my duty to make to them from time to time.

I must congratulate them also on the care they have taken in providing for the disposal of the children entrusted to their care. I cannot, however, sufficiently warn them not to relax their efforts in performing this duty. It is, perhaps, the most important one imposed on Managers. The whole success or failure of an Industrial School depends mainly on the intelligence and care with which it is discharged.

I also desire to express my gratitude for the assistance I have received from the clerical staff of this office. It is mainly owing to the vigilance of Mr. Luseombe that the parental contributions have shown a marked tendency to increase, since I have been responsible for the working of the Department.

The Appendices to the Report have been compiled by Mr. Colles Moore. The tables showing the number of children from the different counties and towns in each school, introduced by me for the first time last year, involve considerable labour in their compilation. They are, however, perhaps, amongst the most important in the Report.

This year two new tables have been added, one showing the amount of money borrowed by schools from the Board of Works, and that portion of it still unpaid. The other gives a statistical abstract of the grounds of committal of the 1,247 children who were sent to Industrial Schools during 1891. This latter table, taken in connection with the one showing the counties and towns from which the committed children came, will be of special interest to those who desire to investigate the working of the Industrial Schools Act throughout the country.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servant,

ROWLAND BLENNERHASSETT, BART., D.L.
